Call for Intensivists and ICU registrars!

The Goulburn base hospital (NSW) Intensive Care Unit is urgently looking for FCICM qualified Intensivists and ICU registrars (Preferably CICM trainees and other colleges' trainees but anyone with suitable skillset and experience welcome) who can help with provision of high quality intensive care services and preparing this site for what is predicted to be a high demand for Intensive care requiring patients.

The hospital currently has one FCICM qualified Intensivist involved in provision of clinical services and preparation for the contingency. There are Junior Medical officers round-the-clock on-site in ICU. There are preparation on war footing to expand the ICU capacity by annexing and repurposing adjacent available clinical areas. Efforts are also underway to procure required technical resources.

In our preparations, we have made it a top priority to ensure our Medical professionals' safety be guarded at all times. Very strong Infection control and prevention measures are being undertaken at this time hospital wide. We are mindful of the unique challenges that Medical professionals face at this time and are prepared to support you in any way possible if there happens to be a need to be isolated or quarantined. A Senior Medical team comprising of Specialists from various specialties are directly involved and overseeing all planning and preparations on a daily basis.

We request anyone with availability to express their interest by email to: SNSWLHD-GoulburnEDLocums@health.nsw.gov.au

Or ring us direct on: 02 4827 3975

The terms of engagement, remuneration and other matters can be individualized.

We appreciate your noble work at this time of crisis and request you consider our site to provide your services.
